

The Future of ADR Practitioners

Trends in Asia, ESG, Advocacy and Fee Models

Tuesday 8 November 2022 | 1-3pm

Peter & Kim #3805 Trade Tower

511 Yeongdong-daero Gangnam-gu

AGENDA

CLICK HERE TO REGISTER

1 00 PM - 1 15 PM ● Welcome & Opening Speech

Kap-You (Kevin) Kim • Steve Kim

1 15 PM - 2 00 PM ● Recent Trends in International Mediation and Fee Models: an Asian Perspective

Yun Jae Baek • Kap-You (Kevin) Kim • George Lim • Jinhee Kim

Industry veterans will discuss exciting developments and inroads made in international mediation and what can be done to make mediation more attractive to practitioners. Come gain insights into fee models in different jurisdictions, including conditional fee arrangements and front-loading approaches to incentivize greater use of mediation in resolving international commercial disputes. This will give prominence to mediation advocates, and establish mediators as a self-standing profession, while, at all times, keeping client's interests front and center.

2 00 PM - 3 00 PM ● Opportunities in ESG, Green Mediation and Advocacy

Una Cho • Wee Meng Chuan • Chung Jin Chung • Hongjoong Paul Kim • Shem Khoo

Drill into the opportunities presented by the move towards ESG (environmental, social, and governance) requirements across multinational deals and projects. Find out about the advocacy skills and domain expertise that counsel and mediators will need to resolve the international disputes which will invariably arise. These will come not just from new, greenfield projects, but also in the conversion of existing 'brownfield' plants, buildings, infrastructure, and technologies into more sustainable ones.

While mediation is already an efficient, cost-effective way to resolve disputes, it also lends itself well as a governance tool in providing redress – well-run companies have fewer and shorter disputes and are therefore more sustainable.

Supported by

Part of

Seoul ADR Festival
2022